

May this be a poor year for dark horses.

Minnesota has 7,000 lakes, and a republican majority of 20,000 when the republicans are not fighting each other.

The Boston papers have finally found out that there are other candidates beside Senator Bismarck. It is late to make such a discovery, but better late than never.

The poor clergy are very friendly to the proposition of Bishop Henry C. Potter, that every clergyman whose salary is $3,000 or over shall contribute an annual percentage to increase the income of clergymen who receive less than $1,000.

The most interesting thing of the time is that a man down in Delaware has been convicted and fined $6 for stealing an umbrella, beside receiving 20 lashes! When umbrellas takers are brought to justice, there is hope for the country. But where, O where, are the Wall street swindlers?

When General Grant was asked the other day if his son Jesse had fled to Canada, he gave this laconic answer: "My sons could not go to Canada or anywhere else for the good and sufficient reason that they have no money, and I do not think they would walk or steal rides on freight trains."

Very much to the point: The Democratic papers are now beginning to say that they need a broad policy and a candid popular with all sections of the country. The trouble is that their present policy is altogether too broad. It is, all the way from the Dan of free-trade to the Beersbels of protection.

Mr. Gooding read the paragraph in Mr. Blaine's book on the ex-senator from New York, and then he went around the corner and winked at a friend, said: "Blaine is a man of great talents and ability, who has rendered the republican party distinguished services and who is justly entitled to credit." This is the way Blaine broke an enemy of twenty years' standing. He did it with his little pen.

To oppose President Arthur on the ground that he is not as strong as some other candidate, is far enough. The party wants the strongest candidate the convention can name for success as more to be desired than the advancement of any particular man, but the attempt to boom Blaine or any other candidate by testing President Arthur down, is an unblushing outrage and a dastardly crime against the party.

It will require considerable common and sober sense, cool discretion, rare wisdom, and very thoughtful calculation by the national republican convention to find a nominee that will place the party in a condition to win success this fall. If Tilden is to be the nominee of the democratic convention it stands to a moral certainty that a strong nomination of the June convention will defeat him. If such a good piece of fortune falls to the lot of the republicans, as that of the democrats nominating the head of the old ticket of '76, the battle of this year will be half won.

Patents were issued on May 20th to Wisconsin inventors, as reported to us by Messrs. Erwin & Benedict, patent attorneys, of 395 East Water street, Milwaukee, Wis., as follows:

Valve-gear, G. M. Oonway, Milwaukee; Table-leaf support, E. J. Gould, Doo-cobol; Oil-press mat, C. S. Hamilton, Milwaukee; Pressure-feeder for pulp-grinder, E. F. Millard, Marinette; Toy, W. B. Sales, Oshkosh; Bow-facing rowing mechanism, J. P. Willard, West Duperre.

The Arthur newspaper men can congratulate themselves on the fact that their press does not come forth with vituperations of Mr. Blaine. He is one of these men who deserves the hearty good will of every republican. He is a man of conspicuous ability, and his services in behalf of the republican party and its best principles stand prominent in the history of this country and can never be forgotten. The party owes him a debt of gratitude, and a large portion of the party now want to pay that debt by giving him the nomination at Chicago, and this is all right, but it should not be done at the expense of the party. What is done at Chicago should be done with an eye single to the best interests of the party; not in the mean time the candidates should be treated with the respect due their abilities, positions, and splendid services.

That sober question comes to the mind, who is certain of carrying New York? The Blaine men say that Arthur can not, but that the man from Maine can. The Arthur men are positive that the president can poll 20,000 more votes in the Empire state than Blaine can under the most favorable circumstances. Ex-Secretary Evans has presumed to say that the man who can carry New York is not a New York man, and that no man living in that state can carry it this year. Some of the strongest republican papers in east, those which one might suppose were managed by men of exceptionally high character and who would fling away long prejudice as a thing to be despised, are making a bitter war on the president, and treating him with as much contempt as if he were a third-rate democratic politician, when the fact remains to the honor of his administration, that thirty-eight states have enthusiastically resolved that his management of public affairs has been a shining credit to the president, an honor to the country, and a tower of strength to the party. A newspaper which would attempt to belittle the character of such a president, especially when coolly considering the terrible circumstances under which he became president, is destitute of honor and merits the condemnation of the public regard- less of party.

STATISTICS OF LABOR.

Passage by the Senate of a Bill to provide for Their Collection.

Substance of Its Provisions—Another Senator Makes a Point on the Frye Plan—Hill for Chicago—Brisce.

WASHINGTON CITY, May 24.—The senate has passed Mr. Aldrich's substitute for the labor statistics bill. The original bill was amended by the substitute by a vote of 38 to 25. Those voting in the negative were Messrs. Blair, Call, Cameron (Wisconsin), Conger, Cullop, George, Harrison, Hill, Hoar, Jones, (Nebraska), Logan, McMillan, Pike, Platt, Sawyer, Sherman, Voorhees and Wilson. The substitute establishes a bureau of labor in the department of the interior, under charge of a commissioner at $3,000 per annum, to be appointed by the president. The commission is to collect information upon the subject of labor, its relations to capital, its causes of labor, and the earnings of laboring men and women, and the means of promoting their material, social, intellectual and moral prosperity. The expenses of the bureau are limited to $25,000 per annum.

Before the final vote was taken on the passage of the bill, as thus amended, Mr. George said that Messrs. Voorhees, Call and himself were the only Democrats who had voted against the substitute and to sustain the original bill. The bill was reported to the house of representatives by a Democratic committee and passed by a Democratic vote with less than twenty dissenting voices.

"The senator is out of order," said the chair, "in referring to the proceedings of the house."

"I withdraw the remarks then," said Mr. George, amid an outbreak of laughter. "That is about all I intended to say."

The bill passed with only two dissenting votes, those of Messrs. Colquhoun and Salisbury.

Congressional Record.

WASHINGTON CITY, May 24.—In the senate, Harrison made a favorable report on the bill providing that the legislature of Dakota shall consist of forty-four members of the council and twenty-eight members of the house. A bill was passed to establish in the interior department a bureau of labor, at an expense not exceeding $25,000 per annum. In a debate on the bill to provide for protecting the interests of the United States in respect to incursions, Beck said that under the letter of the act the president could pay off the Union Pacific railroad mortgage. Senator Stanford said that on the majority of the Union and Central Pacific mortgages, in 1882, those roads would owe the government $185,000,000. The pension appropriation bill was passed.

In the house of representatives, Waller denied that he had been solicited by William H. English to abstain himself on the occasion of the meeting of Mr. Peelle, and he expressed the hope that the investigating committee would inquire into the matter. Kolbe called for an inquiry into his alleged conversation with the star route frauds, and the matter was referred to the judiciary committee. A bill was passed appropriating $300,000 to pay certain quartermaster claims, one of which is due to the estate of Thomas H. Jones.

Preparing for an Exodus.

WASHINGTON CITY, May 24.—Republican congressmen are already preparing for their exodus for the national republican convention by arranging for pairs. They are asking the Democrats to agree not to bring up any political question during convention week, promising to return the favor when the time comes for the Democratic convention, if congress should then be in session. In consequence of the different political complexion of the senate and house, neither party is likely to get any of the bills of final adjustment, so that whatever advantage the Democratic house may have by reason of the fact that the republican presidential ticket will be open to criticism in the house, may be compensated by the republican senate holding congress in session until after the Democratic convention has done its work.

Very few republican congressmen are willing to say what candidate they prefer for the nomination. They run over a list of the names that have been before the public, and dismiss the question with an indorsement of all of them as good men. Yet there appears to be a growing feeling among the republican members of congress that the favor which Englishman will prove to be dangerous rivals of the man who are supposed to be the first choice of the delegations.

Relieving Confederate Disabilities.

WASHINGTON CITY, May 24.—The house committee on the judiciary has agreed to report favorably Mr. Bissell's bill which repeals sections of the civil disabilities laws as it now operates to prohibit promotion to the positions of commissioned and non-commissioned officers in the regular army of the United States of any private soldier in said army, or who may hereafter enlist therein, or have served as such private soldiers two years since September 1, 1860. The object of the bill is to relieve the disabilities of Confederate soldiers.

National Capital Notes.

WASHINGTON CITY, May 24.—The Dakota territory bill reported to the senate by Mr. Harrison provides that the legislature of that territory shall consist of twenty-four members of the council and forty-eight members of the house.

The postoffice department has arranged the new schedule for Mexican mails as follows: By rail from New York to Mexico city via St. Louis, leave New York at 8 a. m. and arrive seven days later in the City of Mexico at 7:10 a. m.; leave the City of Mexico on return at 9 p. m. and arrive in New York seven days later at 10:30 p. m. The entire distance is 5,740 miles and the time required to make the trip either way is about seven days.

Lieut. Day, who was sent in charge of the United States troops to drive out the Ojibwa Indians from the Indian Territory, reports to the authorities here that he is likely to be overpowered, as serious resistance has been offered. Additional troops will be sent from Fort Sill, if found necessary.

He tells me that the effect of the medicine has been marvelous. It has brought him out every spring for the last year, and he has been able to stand and report to its use upon any recurring symptom of his pain."

TROUBLED WALL STREET.

Stocks Continue to Go Down—The Latest from Wall—'Buck's' Grant.

New York, May 24.—The feeling of excitement and suspense in financial circles is becoming more and more aggravated each day. The enormous shrinkage in the value of the coal stocks Thursday was followed by a still further heavy decline in them, while the rest of the list was weak. In fact the bears held high carnival and knocked values down at will. Stocks that have been heretofore looked upon as a class of investments and secure upon their merits alone were attacked and hammered at intervals throughout the day. The bears appear to be fully determined to carry out a threat made some time since that before the bottom was reached there would not be a stock on the list whose price could not be given in two figures.

There was great excitement on 'change, and brokers rushed about, shouting and gesticulating to each other, and the selling was general, the bulls being beaten from the start. From the opening to the close the decline was; almost uninterrupted, although there was a fractional recovery in some cases. Just before the close the announcement that the Erie railroad would default in its June interest, caused a decline in that stock from 62 to 55 1/2.

It is said that the Bank of Montreal has recently poured into Wall street $5,000,000 in gold. A syndicate has taken from Fish & Hatch all their government bonds, which must prove a great relief to the banks. James F. Keane has offered his creditors notes payable in gold and silver, and the amount of stock of the Erie railroad on the list stand above par.

'Buck's' Grant made his appearance at his office in the morning, and laughed at the rumor that he had run away. Fred Ward, U. S. senator, who makes a complete confusion of his operations, and it is intimated that there will be some surprising revelations.

Some More of Ward's Business.

New York, May 24.—Some interesting particulars of the stock notes made by Grant & Ward have been ascertained. There are a large number of these notes out, and it is said the clerks employed by the firm would claim to the extent of over $1,000,000. It was a common occurrence in the office for the clerks to endorse them. Ward would tell them it was a mere matter of time before he would get the money, and he would make a complete confusion of his operations, and it is intimated that there will be some surprising revelations.

Decided to Pass the Interest.

New York, May 24.—It is announced upon authority that the Erie Railway company has decided to pass the June interest on the consolidated bonds, owing to the loss to the company through the failure of the Marine bank.

The board of directors has issued a circular in which it says that under ordinary circumstances the board might, as on former occasions, provide for the deficit of the first six months, relying on the usual increase in earnings on the last half of the year, but in the present depressed condition of the business of the country and of the earnings of the company, the board does not feel at liberty to deal with anything but the business and earnings as now ascertained and therefore deems it wise to postpone the payment of the coupons belonging to the bonds issued under the second mortgage. The board believes the failure to provide for the payment of the interest cannot be of long duration, but that by the exercise of great economy in conducting the business of the company and a careful husbanding of its resources and protection of its credit the emergency requiring the postponement of payment either in whole or in part will speedily pass.

THE GREAT MYSTERY.

Further Testimony Taken Before the Coroner.

Frank M. Panchon Relates His Story and Connection with Gustie.

Panchon arrested on Charge of Adultery.

There was a "jam" at the police court this forenoon to catch a glimpse of Frank M. Panchon, the alleged seducer of the unfortunate Gustie Luckow. He is of medium height, has red hair, is about 35 years old, and has a countenance that does not belie the general reputation of the man.

The following is a continuation of the testimony before the coroner's inquest, commencing where our report ended yesterday, being that of Dr. Whiting:

He clearly did not make much of an effort for respiration, and must have gone into the water with a determination to drown himself, and went in in a semi-conscious condition. If she had gone into the water with full consciousness he thought there would have been more blood in the heart. She might have been smothered by holding something over her mouth, and that would produce the exact conditions in which she was found. Decomposition usually makes a drowned person come to the surface, but there was nothing of this kind in Gustie's case.

Dr. Palmer testified that he made an examination of the body of Gustie Luckow with Dr. Whiting. He gave a general description of the clothing the girl wore, and its condition when he first saw the body in the Hyatt house barn. There was no external evidence of injury except on the left cheek. [The condition of the internal organs were fully described by the doctor.]

The lungs were found in a healthy condition, and the air cells distended with air. The stomach was in a normal condition, which was found to contain two or three ounces of partially digested food. The heart was examined and found to contain a small portion of fluid. The mouth and throat were in a normal condition, and the tongue slightly enlarged, and pressed against the lower teeth. He judged the immersion in the water was the cause of death, but that she was in an unconscious condition when she went into the water. There seemed to be a condition which showed that some of the functions were suspended when she went into the river. There did not seem to have been any effort made on the part of the deceased to respiration. [The difference between this case and that of natural drowning are the constriction on the side of the head; the distention of the lungs; the air in the air cells; no decomposition to account for the large amount of air; the small quantity of food in the stomach, and no evidence of vomiting; the heart being nearly empty, containing but little blood and the right side containing less than the left; the condition of the hands, being partially opened and in a normal condition and being no mark or foreign matter under the nails which is ordinarily found in natural drowning.]

Thomas Welsh was sworn as to how he found the body in the river, and about seeing the body on Wednesday, but supposed it was a stick of wood. He described the manner in which the body was brought to shore, and its general appearance when found.

F. M. Panchon, the prisoner, was sworn and said he had lived in Janesville four months, and by trade was a painter. He knew Gustie Luckow, and had known her three weeks. He had first seen her at O. W. Jackson's, where he was engaged in painting the house, and was there about two weeks altogether, and finished there last Saturday night. He became acquainted with Gustie Luckow the first afternoon he was at Jackson's, she introducing herself to the witness.

On the second day he talked with her about Burr Robbins' show, and Gustie asked him if he was going to the show and he said "no," and when she asked him why, he replied that he had no one to go with him, and in the afternoon of that day she asked the witness if he wasn't going to take her to the show, and he asked her why she didn't let the other fellow take her, and she answered that she had no other fellow. The witness then said to her that she would not want to go with him as he was a married man, and she replied that made no difference to her. There was no more said about the circus. He joked her about her "fellow," and said he intended to take his wife up and introduce her to Gustie, which he did that evening. The deceased went home with witness and his wife, and after staying there an hour and a half and they returned home with her. Two weeks ago to-day she said she had an invitation to go buggy riding with Wally Harris, but she didn't know whether she would go or not, as she had another fellow up near Watertown, and he should hear of it he would go back on her. Harris did not hear this conversation. He told Harris what she said about the buggy riding, and she said she would rather go with the witness than go with Harris, and when he asked her if she really meant what she said, she said she did, and said she would go any time he came after her. Harris claimed that he was a better looking man than Panchon, and said she had better go with him instead of Panchon. The latter then replied that if Harris went with her he would have nothing to do with her, when Gustie said she had another fellow coming after her and she didn't care for either one of them. She afterwards asked him if he was going to take her out buggy riding this spring and would enjoy one. He then said it she would go with him he would take her out if the weather was favorable Sunday afternoon. She said she would be glad to go. The first thing she asked the witness, was, if he was going to take her riding the next day (last Sunday) when he said he would it didn't rain, and they agreed to go at 4 o'clock. She said she was engaged to a man at Watertown, but her mother objected to the marriage. The witness then told her that if he was in her place he would marry the fellow any way if she loved him.

DISASTROUS FIRE.

On the Jackman Farm, in the town of Harmony.

Loss from Three to Four Thousand Dollars.

Partially Covered by Insurance.

A few minutes after one o'clock this afternoon Dr. J. B. Whiting, who resides near the farm ground, telephoned the fire department an alarm of fire, stating that there was a large fire on the farm. The department did not "catch" the alarm, but the message, but started at the top of the hill. Upon reaching the top of the hill on Milwaukee road, and no signs of a fire could be seen, they were ordered back to their houses. No sooner had they reached their respective quarters than a second message was sent in, more definite than the first, and again the department started for the fire. The teams were well warmed up by the first run, and when they again reached the top of the hill they were again ordered back to their houses. The fire was at the Jackman farm, in the town of Harmony, about one mile and a half from Main street. It was slow and difficult work for one team of horses to draw the heavy engine, and seeing this the west side engine and hook and ladder truck were ordered back to their houses, while the east side engine was ordered forward with all possible speed. When they reached the farm ground, the horses of this company were about exhausted, and another team was procured at the farm and sent down the road to aid them. They soon arrived, however, and the engine went to work, an ample supply of water being found in a large cistern close by the dwelling house. When the engine reached the scene, the fire had burned the feed cooking house, the corn crib, machinery house, hay barn, and granary, and was slowly working its way to the dwelling house, and a large shed in the rear of the other buildings already destroyed. The firemen, however, soon put a stop to this, and commenced to wet down the runs.

The fire originated in the feed-cooking house which stood between the machinery house and the corn crib. The corn crib, south of the large barn known as No. 1, which was valued at about $2,000. In the rear of the crib, to the south was a large pig-pen and sheds containing a Durham bull. The machinery house contained all the farm machinery, valued at from $1,500 to $2,000. All this property was destroyed. North of the large, or No. 1, barn, was the granary, which was badly damaged, but was saved by the timely arrival of the fire engine. A large straw stack some rods to the west was also destroyed, and numerous sheds. The household goods were all removed in time to prevent any loss, but the house did not take fire. There was insurance up on the buildings destroyed, amounting to $2,050, in the Continental, represented by Messrs. Dimock & Hayner, of this city. The loss will over-reach that sum. The farm was worked by Mr. Timothy McCoo, who owned an interest in this personal property, and we were unable to learn his exact loss, and also the amount of insurance but will estimate the loss at $1,500, and understand that he was insured in the town company. Just how the fire originated could not be ascertained.

The neighbors turned out and worked like Trojans to stop the destruction, but the fire had gained an advantage which it maintained until the arrival of help from the city.

The horses belonging to the east side fire company were about used up, but it is hoped that they will come out all right. The horse attached to the hose cart did not fare quite so bad, but was about exhausted when reaching the fire. The first was the first time the department ever went out of the city limits to extinguish a fire.

THE COURTS.

THE CIRCUIT COURT.

The jury in the case of the estate against Warren Helms for stealing six small pigs found him guilty this morning, after a few minutes absence. A motion for a new trial was made, and sentence delayed until the motion should be disposed of. The defendant is out on bail.

Helms has next to answer to a charge of adultery. His attorneys will seek to get him off on a plea that he has been tried and acquitted of that offense in the municipal court. The arguments upon that plea are being heard this afternoon. Messrs. J. W. Sale & E. M. Byer will represent the state and Messrs. Ogden E. Fethers and J. W. Bates the defendant.

Judge Winslow will not be here next week as announced some time ago, and will not come until the jury cases are disposed of.

A Fair Offer.

The Voltaire Bank company, Marshall, Mich., offer to send Dr. Lyne's Voltaire Bath and Appliances on trial for thirty days, to men, young or old, afflicted with nervous debility, lost vitality, and kindred troubles. See advertisement in this paper.
